MISS MARY TEDESCO
... in Blue Hawaii or at balmy Benning, a girl in a grass-skirt is enticing a jitterbug battle in Manila, which just proves that a hula girl can do other things, too. Dancing is still one of her favorite likes along with swimming and listening to Xavier Cugat's rumba, a hobby, incidentally, which amounts to a passion with this lovely little blonde. TEDESCO ON MEN: Honestly, I have no set ideas on men. Naturally, I like them a lot and despite the fact that I've been around them all my life, I prefer men in uniform. VITAL STATISTICS: Age—18. Height—5' 3 1/2". Weight—110. Bust—34. Eyes—Beautifully blue. Hair—Blonde as blonde can be. Complexion—Fairest of the fair. Truly a beauty of the slender type who makes the "hula girl of 1944" our real dream girl. She's lived at Fort Davis in the Panama Canal Zone, Fort Meade in Maryland, San Francisco and spent almost two years in the Philippines. She left the Pacific islands in the spring of 1941 when Army families were evacuated, and returned to the states. Has been at Benning almost two years and finally finished her interrupted high school education at Columbus High last June. After a summer of leisure she started working for the Signal Corps in September and has been there ever since as a money order clerk in the Signal Center under Douglas Stadium. Only contest she ever won was not a beauty contest, but

CO Orders Post Personnel to Pay OPA Rentals Only

Military personnel at Fort Benning Wednesday were told in a post memorandum issued by Col. William H. Hobson, post commanding officer, that they were not to pay more rent for housing accommodations than that authorized by OPA.

The memorandum states that all military personnel should inspect the landlord's copy of OPA registration, pay no more than the authorized rent, demand a receipt for all rents paid and report all violations or attempted violations either to the post billing office or the downtown branch.

The memorandum was issued by Colonel Hobson after the need for it had been expressed by all commanding officers of the post. Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commander of the Infantry School; Maj. Gen. Lindsay Silvester, commanding general of the 7th Armored Division; Brig. Gen. Ridgely Gaither, commander of the Parachute School; Col. George E. Jacobs, commanding officer of the 2nd Army Troops; and Lt. Col. John Albert, commanding officer of Lawson Field.

COL. ERNEST A. RUDELIOUS, Commander

Colonel Rudelius Commands Post's 2d Army Troops

Colonel Ernest A. Rudelius has been assigned to Fort Benning as commanding officer of all Second Army troops stationed at the post, according to an announcement made Tuesday. He replaces Col. George E. Jacobs who has been given another assignment. Prior to his assignment to this station, the new Second Army commander served with the IX Corps.

Colonel Rudelius attended the Infantry School Company Officers' course from 1925 until 1926 and, from 1936 until 1939 served as an instructor, after which he was detailed with the Adjutant General's Department until June, 1943. He attended the Command and General Staff School from 1932 until 1934 and the Army War College in 1936.

The Second Army detachment chief is a native of Rockford, Illinois, is married and has a daughter attending the University of Maryland. He holds a B. S. degree from the University of Hawaii.

Enterprise Will Cost $60,000

Architects' plans are almost complete for a new $60,000 shopping center for Baker Village which was recently authorized by the Federal Public Housing Authority at Washington. Authorization was made through the regional office at Atlanta at the request of the Columbus Housing Authority. Brown Nicholson, executive director of the Columbus Housing Authority, announced.

Post Ready For Fourth Bond Drive

With the kickoff set for next Tuesday, January 18, and the deadline for the national quota of 14 million dollars set for February 15, plans for Fort Benning's participation in the Fourth War Loan drive have been well-organized to attain the three-point program set for military establishments. Major George Fink, post war bond officer, declared this week.

Every post unit was represented at a meeting of war bond officers last week, and there is every reason for anticipating another big victory for Fort Benning. The Major said, "As far as we have been able to ascertain Benning bought more bonds than any other military post in the nation in the Third Loan drive. In 1943, Benning purchased military and civilian bonds, invested $3,994,662.28 in bonds and stamps. Benning is ready to go again. But we must urge all personnel to give the final papers before the buildings can be built. Mr. Nicholson reported.

80 Dwelling Units
The 80 additional dwelling units authorized in November for Baker Village by the FPHA at Washington have been financed by a recent appropriation, but lack the "go ahead" necessary from President Roosevelt who must sign the final papers before the buildings can be built. Mr. Nicholson reported.

These new dwellings are to be located on 10 acres of land near the 20-acre site set aside for the high school. They will be buildings of permanent construction. The Village extended its holdings by acquiring four acres of land, extending another section of its land to the highway to prevent the erection of unsightly or undesirable buildings.

DELISCU HONORED
The Silver Star for gallantry in action during the recent conquest of Makin Atoll in the Gilbert Islands was awarded to Sgt. John Francis D'Eliscu of the Infantry School faculty by Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, Commanding General of the post, during a regimental review of the 300th Infantry late last week.

WAC Officials Praise Integration Of Women Into Army At Benning

Strong approval of the way the Academic regiment of The Infantry School has incorporated its Woman's Army Corps units into regular army routine was voiced at Fort Benning this week by three high WAC officials who have concluded a full inspection of the Main Post and Harmony church WAC detachments.

General Fulton Club Manager

Brigadier General Walter Scott Fulton, who retired September 30, 1940, has assumed the position of club manager of the Officers' Club, which was announced at post headquarters Saturday.

Since his retirement, General Fulton has been quite active in military affairs in Columbus. He has been active in the National War Fund, directing a campaign in which the quota set was well over-subscribed.

General Fulton has been connected with Fort Benning since March 15, 1940, and has served as post inspector, executive officer, and commanding officer of the Infantry School. He held the last assignment from April 10, 1942 until his retirement last September.

As a reward for the remarkable services rendered his country during his long Army career, Major General Fulton was awarded the Legion of Merit.

'What's Buzzin' Surprise Filled

"What's Buzzin'," an all-novelty vaudeville unit, is a unique new offering sponsored by USO Camp Shows, Inc., that buzzes into Fort Benning on January 14 and tours the reservation for five days. Gathered together in one troupe are acts unlike any seen in many a day. It is definitely different. Heading the bill is Jean Carter, mistress of ceremonies, who played a leading role in the hilarious Broadway farce "Soup for Soldiers." WAC officers are a guaranteed rib-ticker.

Nurses' Aides to Train In Post Station Hospital

Because of a serious shortage of Army nurses and with no prospect of the situation being alleviated, the Red Cross Volunteers Nurses' Aides at Fort Benning will inaugurate successive classes for nurses' aides at Fort Benning Station Hospital, Mrs. Andrew T. Knight, chairman of the RCVNA, announced Wednesday. The first class will begin this month, just as soon as 30 Fort Benning women have enrolled for the first course.

Volunteers are being urged to sign up, leaving their names, addresses and telephone numbers in the Red Cross Work Room on Vibert avenue. The day of formal enrollment will be announced.

Mrs. Knight, wife of Colonel Knight of the Defense Committee, Academic Department, The Infantry School, pointed out that Station Hospital has a set-up of 2,000 beds, with an additional 1,000 in Harmony Church, Station Hospital No. 2, which calls for a very large staff of nurses. In view of the crucial shortage of Army Nurses, the hospitals at Benning will be in ever-increasing need of aides recruited from post personnel.

Until recently no nurses' aides had been used at Benning, although they were in service at the hospital at Walter Reed in Washington and Bellevue in New York, Mr. Knight said.

New Post Chaplain Will Conduct Service Sunday

Lt. Col. John W. Westerman, who was a division chaplain under Maj. Gen. C. H. Bonesteel, present commandant of the Infantry school, while the latter was on duty in Iceland, has assumed his duties as chief of the Chaplain's corps at Fort Benning. Col. Westerman will conduct his first services at the Chapel Sunday, Jan. 16.

Col. Westerman, who has had 16 years' service as a regular army chaplain, is a native of Baltimore, Md., where he was born on March 23, 1897.

He is a graduate of the Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., and of the Army Chaplain's school at Harvard University. He is a member of the Lutheran faith.

During his army career Chaplain Westerman has held chaplain's posts at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Vancouver Barracks, Wash.; Fort Amador, Panama Canal Zone, Col.; Fort Rucker, Ala.; Fort Belvoir, Ill.; Fort Belvoir, Va. Before coming to Benning he was on temporary duty as acting chaplain of the Military District of Washington.

The Westermans have one child, at present a student in the Concordia College Institute. Scientists have found that food oil can be obtained from orange seeds.

SPIRIT WIVES MEET

The Officers' Wives' Club of the 176th Infantry will hold their monthly luncheon on January 19 at 1:30 P. M. at the Officers' Club. Those desiring to make reservations please call Mrs. John Folkes at Fort Benning 2607 before noon on Tuesday, January 18. All members and new arrivals are cordially invited to be present.

R. C. Motor Corps To Give New Course

A soldier's family is stranded at the railroad station without transportation to the post.

A soldier's wife and new baby have to be taken home from the hospital.

Blood donors anxious to give the Red Cross their blood to help save some wounded man's life, must be transported to and from the blood bank.

In these and dozens of other cases at Fort Benning, a call goes out to the Red Cross Motor Corps, a group of women who have volunteered the use of their private automobiles, and their own services as drivers, when they are needed by the Red Cross.

To meet the need for more of these skilled drivers, the Red Cross is arranging a motor mechanics course, prerequisite for admission to the Motor Corps, which starts this month. While the exact date has not yet been decided, anyone interested in taking the course should register at the Red Cross Work Room at Fort Benning between 9 o'clock and 12 noon Monday, January 17.

Mrs. Starnes announced that the course will be given at the Motor Maintenance School in two four-hour lessons on January 28 and on February 7. Hours will be from 2 p. m. to 6 p. m. Heretofore eight one-hour classes were held, but it is believed that the new arrangement will be more satisfactory and less protracted for busy post housewives.

station wagon for use by the Corps, although arrangements for the purchase have not been completed. At present, members have their own cars and furnish gasoline for the trips they make. They are given extra ration coupons for the gas they use on Red Cross work.

The Motor Corps, which has been in operation at Fort Benning since October, 1941, now has 14 active members, headed by Mrs. W. L. Starnes, captain. The bulk of its work at present is transporting patients, particularly soldiers' wives and their new babies, from the hospital.

However, members of the Corps are on call all day long for a variety of services. They pick up old magazines from residents of the post and distribute them at the hospital and Reception Center.

They take surgical dressings, made by other Red Cross volunteers on the post, to Columbus, where they are shipped for use in treating wounded soldiers.

The Motor Corps on the post cooperates with the Red Cross Chapter in Columbus in an effort to make transportation available when it is needed and still avoid unnecessary trips to town. For example, when a sick or injured soldier's family arrive in Columbus to visit him at the hospital on the post, the Fort Benning Motor Corps asks the Columbus chapter to meet them and bring them to the post. When they leave, the Fort Benning chapter arranges transportation to town.

The visits of the Red Cross Mobile Blood Donor's Units to the post, brings many calls to the Motor Corps. Members stand by to take home any donor who feels faint after giving blood and to provide transportation to and from the blood bank for any donor who has no other means of getting there.

Originally from St. Louis, Mo., the colonel graduated from West Point in 1906. There followed a three-year tour of duty in the Philippine Islands and visits to China and Japan. In July 1940, Col. Ryder was accepted for parachute duty and in November of that year was given the responsibility of organizing and training the original 501st Parachute Battalion. At this time also he set up the Parachute School which has since developed from a single pyramid tent to the most elaborate establishment for parachute training in the world.

Parachutists Took Germans' Worst, Here to Tell About It

Back in the United States after more than a year of active combat service in North Africa and Italy are two parachute soldiers, First Sergeant James C. Anderson of Bowdon, Ga., and Corporal George W. Caldwell of Columbus, Ga. These two soldiers each wear four bronze stars in their North African-Middle Eastern Theater of Operations ribbons, indicating four major engagements. Corporal Caldwell has been awarded a Purple Heart with an Oak Leaf Cluster, indicating that he has been wounded twice in combat.

These two fearless paratroopers jumped on four occasions; with the initial assault wave in the opening attack on Algeria and Morocco, the battle of Tunisia, the battle of Sicily, and the battle of Italy. Each has a personal letter from Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark commending them for heroic services above and beyond the call of duty. They arrived at Fort Benning Saturday, reporting for duty with the Parachute School. They are the first members of their unit to be returned to this country under the rotation policy.

Looking hale and hearty despite all their harrowing experiences, both had interesting stories to tell from their combat experiences. Perhaps the most spectacular is that dealing with their activities as part of a guerrilla group behind the German lines in the Italian campaign. Here is the story in Sergeant Anderson's own words:

"My battalion was the only parachute unit to be dropped behind the German lines during the fighting in Italy. We landed there during the night of September 14, shortly before the Fifth army launched its attack on the beaches of Salerno. We were supposed to be dropped near Avellino on a battalion drop zone, but our transports became dispersed because of anti-aircraft fire.

I was the leader of a seventeen man group that landed near me. For sixteen days we worked as a guerrilla group, hiding out during the day in the hills and emerging at night to attack communication lines, supply depots, and trucks. We managed also to blow up two bridges. It was a good thing that our battalion was well dispersed, since there were around ten thousand Germans in Avellino.

Yet in the 16 days of fighting I never lost a man. What did we eat? Well, we didn't have very much. If it hadn't been for the friendly Italian civilians, we never would have escaped alive. They gave us figs, grapes, and potatoes. It wasn't much, but it was all they had. They were risking summary execution by the Germans for giving us aid and comfort.

The whole battalion received a commendation from General Clark for its work in harassing German supply lines. He said that the Fifth army might not have been able to hold the Salerno beach if it hadn't been for our battalion. We were all mighty proud of that commendation.

TOGETHER CONTINUOUSLY
Corporal Caldwell and Sergeant Anderson have been together during their entire military career. They both qualified as paratroopers at the Parachute School in early February, 1942, and were together in every battle. "I was wounded the first time in the Tunisian campaign," he said. "It was about the middle of January and we were at the Feriana airport when the bombing planes came over."

A bomb dropped pretty close and I suffered a deformed lung and a punctured ear drum. After brief medical attention I went right on fighting. I got through the Sicilian campaign all right, but when I jumped near Avellino I made a bad landing. I was hung up fifty feet in the air with a clear drop below. I could see machine guns firing at us, and the tracers were coming pretty close. I pulled out my knife and cut myself down. I was stunned by the landing but after a few minutes managed to crawl off to the shelter of some bushes. My right ankle was broken and I had a cracked vertebra. For sixteen days I fought with Sergeant Anderson's group.

RECEIVE COMMENDATION
When the Eighth army caught up with us I was evacuated to a field hospital where I stayed for a week. My injury was not disabling, and although I could still walk only with difficulty, went back to fighting in the front lines for another three weeks until ordered back for the journey home."

Both men received personal letters of commendation from the

Lawyers Visit 'Chute School

The spirit of Blackstone hovered over the jump fields Thursday as distinguished members of the Georgia Bar Association learned of parachutes and parachuting first hand. Bussed to where the guests continually expressed themselves as very happy in their present pursuits.

They persisted in this attitude although strong protesting measures were assumed and the thoroughness of jump preparation demonstrated in "B" and "C" Stages and in the packing sheds.

A final compromise was reached when it was agreed that the school would not insist on processing the visitors, and the bar members wouldn't insist on the faculty and students in action going through institutions under their jurisdiction.

Those present were: L. L. Davis, president, Columbus Lawyers' club; Marvin Allison, president, Georgia Bar association; John A. Smith, president, Chattahoochee Circuit Bar association; H. E. Paege, lieutenant colonel, Georgia State Guard; Luther B. Rosser, Chief Justice, Circuit court, Atlanta, Ga.; T. Fricke, Fort Judge, Supreme court, Chattahoochee Circuit; J. A. Lynch, Judge Recorders court; Judge Pauline Lamar, Judge, Muscogee Juvenile court; Joseph Rogers, Judge, Circuit court, Buena Vista, Ga.; Thomas L. Dowden, Judge, City court, Columbus; John Bloodworth, Deputy Clerk, Muscogee Supreme court.

army commander, General Clark, for heroic action at the battle of Faid Pass on December 2, 1942. In this action the parachute battalion was being used to afford local protection to a tank destroyer unit. During a bombing raid in that position at Faid Pass, Sergeant Anderson on his own initiative manned a machine-gun whose crew had been knocked out, and kept the gun in action despite bullets and shrapnel flying all about.

Corporal Caldwell similarly manned an anti-aircraft gun whose gunner had been wounded and kept the gun in action all during the raid. Several bullets penetrated his uniform, but both men escaped injury.

Both men participated in all the battles of the Tunisian campaign. The names Gafsa, Maknassy, Kasraria, El Gueitar, Persiana, and Hill 609 are all familiar to them through bitter combat experience. One feature that made the Tunisian campaign so difficult was that they had with them only the equipment they had when they jumped—no shelter, no blankets, no raincoat. In later front line fighting they had the full equipment of regular infantry soldiers.

Sergeant Anderson and Corporal Caldwell will take over new duties in connection with the training of fledgling paratroopers. Sergeant Anderson is married and his wife, Mrs. Marie Anderson, lives at 808 Twenty-ninth street, Columbus, Ga. His mother, Mrs. Nellie Anderson, lives at Route No. 2, Bowdon, Ga. Corporal Caldwell's former residence is Manchester, Ga. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Caldwell, live there at 103 Second street. His wife, Mrs. Lillie Mae Caldwell, lives at 622 Linwood Boulevard, Columbus. She is the daughter of Fire Captain F. C. Turner of that city.

Lt. Cunningham received his commission after attending the judge advocate's school at Ann Arbor, Mich. Prior to coming to Fort Benning for his present assignment, he was stationed in Atlanta in Fourth Service Command headquarters.

Most Food Wastes Occur In Kitchen—Major Jones

"Since 75 per cent of all waste in Army mess halls occurs before food reaches the men, the major responsibility for food conservation falls to kitchen personnel," Major Glenn O. Jones of The Infantry School declared in a recent lecture to the 1st Student Training Regiment.

Part of a program to acquaint all our armed forces with the need to save to avoid a serious food shortage, in 1944, he explained why we must now make the most of every pound produced. American farms and ranches are called on to feed our unprecedently large Army and several allied and neutral nations as well, the Major showed.

How can every unit in the Army help save food? "First, each commander must make an accurate estimate of attendance at meals, so that he draws enough food only for men actually eating with his company," Major Jones pointed out.

"Cooks can make food go further by preparing it more attractively. For example, most men won't eat steamed squash. But squash can be prepared as a pie, like pumpkin, and will be greedily snapped up."

"Food can be served more efficiently. No one likes gravy on his ice cream. That kind of carelessness often tempts a man to throw the whole dish away."

Mess sergeants can also apply their ingenuity in using left-overs, he concluded, although there will be little food unconsumed in an efficiently managed mess.

How can every unit in the Army help save food? "First, each commander must
